Port Lockroy Post Office
Goudier Island
Antarctic Peninsula

Dear Sir or Madam,

I was completely enthralled when my teacher told us there was a British post office in Antarctica; I found it fascinating!

Mrs Twinkl told us that the post office was originally a station during the Second World War. In 1944, it was used for Operation Tabarin, which aimed to deter enemy ships away from the area. Now, it is the United Kingdom's most southern public post office as well as a historical site and living museum.

You are often referred to as the Penguin Post Office because you are surrounded by penguins every day. Can you please let them know I said hello?

Yours sincerely,
Avery

PSHE

Create a poster showing what your ambitions in life would be. This can include where you would like to visit on holiday, your future job, passing your driving test and having a car or where you would like to live.

AMBITIONS

Geography

Make a 3D model river basin out of cardboard, papier-mache and paints – remember to include as many features of a river landscape as you can. Or you could use sand, a bottle and stones. Or you can draw one.

Computing

We are using databases this half term. Use a travel agents database to plan a dream holiday abroad.
